SECTION 3 — TECHNOLOGY & METHODOLOGY

VerifEye® is a scientifically validated credibility assessment technology developed by Converus, Inc. (Lehi, Utah). It measures involuntary ocular-motor responses — including pupil dilation, blink rate, eye movement, and fixation patterns — while the subject responds to a structured series of true/false questions administered via smartphone application. The underlying science was developed at the University of Utah beginning in 2002. VerifEye® applies proprietary machine-learning algorithms to over 180,000 eye measurements per session, producing a Converus Credibility Score indicating the probability of truthfulness.

- Accuracy: 80%+ under standard conditions (Converus-validated)
- Test Duration: Approximately 10 minutes
- Administration: Remote — subject uses a standard iOS or Android smartphone
- No physical contact, no sensors, no special equipment required on subject’s end
- Results scored by proprietary logistic regression algorithm — fully automated, examiner-unbiased

SECTION 4 — PRE-TEST PROCEDURE

Prior to administration, the IAI examiner conducted the following:

- Identity verification of the subject
- Explanation of the VerifEye® process, purpose, and voluntary nature of the assessment
- Review of all test questions with the subject prior to administration
- Confirmation that the subject understood all questions and had no objections
- Confirmation of adequate lighting, camera functionality, and device compliance with VerifEye® requirements

SECTION 5 — QUESTIONS ADMINISTERED

The following questions were administered during the assessment. All questions were reviewed and agreed upon by the subject prior to testing.
